At right, many of the girls ditched their dads to jam out to YMCA during the dance. A large crowd attended the annual event.

Man dies after being gored by bull at sale barn

Oklahoma man found injured in bull pen; died days later at hospital

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Funeral services will be Wednesday in Iowa for an Oklahoma man who died after being injured unloading cattle at the Anderson County Sale Company.

Few details about the man's death were available because no one actually saw the incident, Garnett Police Chief Kevin Pekarek said.

Investigators said Doug Kirkpatrick, 60 of Miami, Okla., was unloading cattle at the sale barn at about 5:40 p.m. Sunday, April 26, and likely fell over the rail into a cattle pen where he was gored by a bull.

Kirkpatrick

According to the police report, Kirkpatrick apparently was attempting to unload cattle and was having some sort of trouble with the animals. Another truck driver who was unloading at the same time said he would get something to

Business classes considered

11-week program could help business owners succeed, official says

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Business owners or entrepreneurs considering a new business could benefit from an 11-week class that may come to the area this fall.

Dennis Arnold, economic development director for Anderson County and Garnett, told Garnett commissioners about a new program that could be offered in the area this fall. The program will need at least 15 people willing to commit to most, if not all, of the 11 weeks of training in order to be offered in the area.

"Growing Rural Businesses" is an entrepreneurial certificate program offered by Wichita State University and NetWork Kansas. It features classes on marketing, merchandising,

Historic Garnett church furniture building to be demolished soon

Industrial development targeted for former site of long-time manufacturer

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The site of a crumbling, run-down former furniture factory which was once one of Garnett's oldest businesses eventually could find new life as an area for industrial development.

Demolition of the former Garnett Church Furnishings factory building at Ninth and Oak streets is expected to begin soon, an economic development official familiar with the project told Garnett commissioners last week. Private economic development groups hope to clean up the site and develop it for future industrial

Phone Forum returns, but its future depends on calls

Ballot results show most people want controversial comment line returned

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — In the immortal words of Dr. Frankenstein, "It's alive" ... at least temporarily.

The Phone Forum, the call-in comment feature which until earlier this year ran weekly on the Review's editorial page, will make its return next week.

The popular feature was discontinued earlier this year after technical problems sidelined the software system that ran it. Anderson County Review Publisher Dane Hicks said he considered not having the system repaired due to costs and to the fact that call traffic with comments for the Phone Forum column had dropped over the last several months.

"I thought maybe it had just run its course and that nobody was interested in it anymore because so many fewer people were calling it to leave comments," Hicks said.

The feature allowed callers to make their comments on the topics of their choice, excluding the names of private individuals or businesses or identifiers that pointed them out. The column was harshly criticized by some in the community who said its repeated negative references gave the community a black eye. Positive comments were also permitted in the column, but were rarely received. Some readers believed the answering software included caller ID, but that feature was never installed, newspaper staff said.

After repeated questions as to the feature's future, the Review published a ballot in its annual sweepstakes edition in early March allowing readers to give the Phone Forum a thumbs-up or thumbs down. Ballots mailed back in with contest entries showed readers favored keeping the Phone Forum in operation 4-1 over those opposed to it.

Hicks said though readers appear to really like the feature, it can't continue if people don't call to comment.

"It's pretty simple," Hicks said. "The Phone Forum doesn't survive if no one calls. If no one calls, there's nothing to print."

The call-in number remains the same for the system, at (785) 448-2500, box number 1.

Furnishings company dates back to 1879 and mostly was a family business until owner Don MacAfee retired in 1993. New owners moved the business to a state-of-the-art $1.3 million factory in the Golden Prairie Industrial Park in the early 2000s, with the county and City of Garnett financing much of the structure. But a series of new owners couldn't save the business and it closed in 2007. The new building was later purchased by East Kansas Agri Energy.

Later, the building at the original site of the furniture factory was owned by a construction company, TL Enterprises, 901 S. Oak St. That company filed bankruptcy, and it took some time for the attorneys and courts to transfer ownership of the property to a private development organization. The Southeast Kansas Prosperity Foundation and the NetWork Kansas E-Community group in Garnett have joined forces to clean up the property and develop it for use as a light industrial or manufacturing business site.

Legal wrangling over the site finally has been completed, Dennis Arnold, economic development director for the city and county, told Garnett city commissioners at their regular meeting Tuesday, April 28. The private eco-devo groups likely would seek bids to demolish what's left of the furniture factory and clean up the site before they can market it as a possible industrial development area.

Several other issues related to the property also will need to be addressed before it can be developed, he said. The city and county are owed past due property taxes for half of 2013 and all of 2014, which in the city's case amounts to about $1,500. Arnold said at some point he likely will ask the city and county to waive those past due taxes. The groups also plan to file a protest with the county appraiser's office to ensure the property assessment accurately reflects the unusable condition of the building, he said.

The site also has significant storm water drainage and erosion problems, he said. Before it can be developed, those issues need to be addressed.

However, the site offers several benefits for economic development, Arnold said. The L-shaped property contains about five acres, with potential to secure another four acres or so. The site already has access to utilities.

The site also includes a 7,000 square foot building with docks that currently is mostly hidden by the rubble. Once the area is cleaned up, that building could be usable. Arnold estimated it would cost about $200,000 to construct a building of similar size and amenities.

Despite concerns that a basement under the former church furniture factory would complicate cleanup, eco-devo officials found there is no basement. Instead, the church furniture building was built on top of a hill, so the lower level of the building actually was a lower level of the hill. He said it could be difficult to grade the area to one level.

"Once everything is cleared off, you'll see the breadth of that site," he said. "It will be a lot more sellable once we clear it off."

City commissioners said they were excited about the potential development opportunities offered once the site is cleared. City officials long have been looking for sites for industrial development, and plans to develop an area near the Garnett Industrial Airport will be costly and time consuming. The airport site will require significant investments like a new road and infrastructure improvements.

Commissioner Preston Peine said he was interested in focusing immediate eco-devo marketing on the old church furniture site.

"It may take pressure off having to make a short-term decision at the airport," he said.

Arnold agreed and said the airport site should be targeted to companies that want larger parcels of land, while the church furniture factory site should appeal to smaller industrial or manufacturing companies.

"This is already there. It will be much cheaper to develop and will be done privately with a benevolent organization," he said.

help and went inside the sale barn building, Pekarek said. When the other truck driver returned, at first he didn't see Kirkpatrick. At some point, he saw Kirkpatrick on the ground and called for emergency help.

An obituary published in the Sioux City (Iowa) Journal said Kirkpatrick died Wednesday, April 29, at St. Luke's Hospital in Kansas City, Mo., from injuries sustained from an encounter with rodeo bulls he was unloading.

Ron Ratliff, owner of the Garnett Sale Barn, said Monday he had no comment. Several black bulls were being held in a pen northeast of the main facility last week, and it's not uncommon for livestock to be held in the facilities pens temporarily awaiting transport.

Bull haulers and cattle haulers are renown in the livestock industry for the work they do, which is to deliver live animals as fast as possible uninjured to market or from seller to buyer. Comments on online trucking sites note cattle haulers are notorious for getting little sleep. Many have backgrounds on family cattle operations or other livestock experience, but the dangers are inherent in not only handling the animals but in transporting them is significant.

"There really is no way to properly train someone on how to do this job because every load is different," said T.J. Miatke, an Oregon, Ill., bull hauler who commented on Lifeasatrucker.com, a website for over-the-road and other truck drivers. "It handles different, pulls different, loads and unloads different and as a bull hauler you have to be on your 'A' game all the time or you'll get you or someone else killed."

Kirkpatrick was born Iowa but apparently lived in Miami, Okla., at the time of the incident. He started a truck driving business, Kirkpatrick Trucking, in 1976. According to his obituary he started hauling cattle and eventually expanded to other aspects of the trucking industry. A motorcycle wreck in 1983 sidelined his career for a year, but he was able to return to driving a truck after rehabilitation.

Funeral services are set for 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 6, in Danbury, Iowa.

sales and other issues important to successful businesses. Classes are taught by professors who have owned or still own a business.

Similar programs have been offered in other communities with good results, Arnold told commissioners during a report at their regular meeting Tuesday, April 28. The goal of the classes is to help businesses be more successful, he said.

The program costs about $22,000, but NetWork Kansas likely will pay for about half that amount, and other organizations also could help subdize the cost, Arnold said. He said participants should expect to pay something for the classes, but he hopes the cost can be held to less than $100.

Organizers typically offer two programs in the spring and two programs in the fall. The Garnett area is slated to have the program in the fall, but many details need to be worked out before the classes can become a reality, Arnold said. The program would need commitments from at least 15 people, but enrollment would be limited to about 25 or 30 people.

What would the PC crowd do to Blazing Saddles today?

Poor Adam Sandler. You might make a comic career out of gas passing and urination jokes these days, but the new PC Nazis in charge of Hollywood simply will not tolerate anyone getting close to the line to poke fun at race, or even racism. It makes me wonder what the jack-booted thugs of the modern liberal left would do to a remake of "Blazing Saddles."

Yep, it ain't 1974 anymore. Sandler became racism fodder recently because a dozen Native American extras in his movie "Ridiculous 6" - a comedy spoof of the Yul Brenner classic "Magnificent 7" - walked off the movie set (and apparently issued their own press release) over what they said was "culturally offensive humor."

Let me see... Adam Sandler? I have to agree with Vanilla Ice's comments: my bet is nobody here was shooting for an Adam Sandler flick to be the next "Dances With Wolves."

If it was a crime to make a bad movie, Adam Sandler, Ben Stiller, Cameron Diaz and that whole now-forty-something crop of rotten actors Hollywood's been forcing down our throats for 15 years now - they'd have all been locked up soon after the first "There's Something About Mary" disaster was released. But the PC crowd doesn't get it - they're too busy adjusting the squelch on their social scanners to detect an offended minority to realize when they smell really, really bad cinema.

The culprit? The "Someone Please Offend Me So I Can Be Important" crowd's obsession with destroying the sense of humor of modern Americans. What, I ask the Gods of Comedy, would they have done to "Blazing Saddles?"

Imagine Mel Brooks's response to The Great Offended Masses if they'd sand-bagged 'Saddles' with modern PC criticism. His slap-stick social commentary did exactly what it was intended to do - it poked fun at everybody's race and ethnicity in order to make us all realize nobody had the market cornered on bigotry and stupidity. When Cleavon Little, the black sheriff in the all white western town, grabbed himself by the collar, held a gun to his head, and told the encroaching white lynch mob "Next man makes a move, the n---r gets it!" and the crowd recoils in fear, ("Hold it men - he's not bluffing!") Brooks reduced us all to the base understanding that no group was getting out of this movie unoffended - and the social lesson was in the beauty of accepting just that.

What made "Blazing Saddles" so hilarious and so unimaginable by today's standards was that pre-PC, people of all colors had enough self esteem to laugh at, acknowledge and subrogate their own stereotypes. When director Ron Shelton gave us "White Men Can't Jump" back in 1992, we got it; when Brooks's filled 'Saddles' with innuendo about enhanced black male sexuality, we got it. Everyone laughed - across racial lines - we all thought it was funny. Nathan Lane got more laughs out of being gay than anyone who ever criticized him for it.

Not anymore. There's just too much political hay to be made from being "offended" and posing before the special interests and the TV cameras in your 15 minutes of martyrdom. What we're left with is a segregating effect - we all tired of hearing the other guy complain and we're stealing up new prejudices against him for it. If he's white, he's an elitist and a preferred member of society; if he's black, he's a product of social welfare lethargy and criminal culture. And from Rodney King to the Duke lacrosse team, everybody gets to wear his badge of victimhood. We were all better off when Mel Brooks made us laugh the chips off our shoulders.

Helping hospitals keep doors open

BY SARAH KESSINGER

THE MARYSVILLE ADVOCATE

U.S. Sen. Jerry Moran's visit to Community Memorial Healthcare in Marysville last week helped bring focus to a need at our local complex of hospital, clinics and specialty care facilities.

Similar to every other Kansas hospital, CMH wants to see an expansion of Medicaid to help cover its cost of uncompensated care. Hospitals have an obligation to serve those who need medical attention. It's wrong to think a health-care facility could just close the doors on children or adults who can't pay.

But someone has to pay the bills to keep our valuable medical providers, nurses, lab techs and other vital staff here.

They not only provide life-saving services, the hospital is among our largest employers. Some rural hospitals in Kansas are nearing the brink of closure because of financial shortfall. Still, state leaders ignore widespread calls to expand Medicaid to pick up more of the uninsured costs. The governor and Republican-controlled Legislature resist even though the federal government will pay 100 percent of a state's expansion costs in the first three years and then phase down to 90 percent after that.

Marysville's hospital is not in dire straits, but it faces a significant challenge to its financial state.

With 13 percent of Marshall County's population uninsured, Community Memorial Healthcare faces $1.5 to 1.7 million in uncompensated care each year, according to Curtis Hawkinson, hospital administrator.

Hawkinson mentioned this to Sen. Moran, who agrees hospitals could use the added Medicaid support to survive. Moran said he'd like to see Kansas figure out a way to accept the expansion.

The federal proposal to broaden Medicaid - known as KanCare in Kansas - is becoming an urgent situation for the Sunflower State.

Call your legislators today and tell them to expand KanCare before they adjourn the session this spring.

Your action could help your community hospital and other small area hospitals to keep their doors open for the long term.

President Obama: A sucker by design

When Ayatollah Ali Khamenei speaks, the world should listen.

He has a much keener sense of the direction of negotiations over Iran's nuclear program than the president of the United States, and is evidently much more forthright about it.

When the Iranians and the United States cut what was portrayed as a tentative deal on the Iranian nuclear program, they described it differently. The U.S. emphasized that sanctions would only be phased out gradually and that inspections would ensure complete transparency.

Ayatollah Khamenei tweeted that there wasn't really a deal, and oh yeah, sanctions would be lifted immediately and inspections wouldn't be allowed to impinge on Iran's security - in other words, would not include military sites.

With its position rapidly eroding in Congress, the Obama administration felt an urgency to tout the non-triumph of the non-deal with reassuring details that either hadn't truly been agreed to, or that the Iranians would be able to back us off of. Once Obama announced and defended the deal as the only alternative to war, he lost whatever leverage he ever had.

The best bet now is that Iran will get a "signing bonus" of perhaps $50 billion upfront, and the phased element of the removal of the sanctions will be window dressing. On inspections, it seems highly unlikely that the Iranians will give way on their military sites. Why would they? They have been able to wring concessions from Obama on almost everything else important - from maintaining thousands of centrifuges, to continuing to enrich, to maintaining its Fordow site buried in a mountain.

The president's fallback of last resort is "snap-back" sanctions that supposedly will punish any Iranian violations, but they will depend on Chinese and Russian cooperation. The Russians just stuck a finger in our eye by agreeing to sell Iran a sophisticated air-defense system. A blase Obama said he was surprised that the Russians hadn't sold Iran the missiles before.

Sometimes you wonder if Obama is even trying. But the scandal is that he isn't a naif; he is a sucker by design.

Just as he gave the Castro regime everything he could while demanding almost nothing in return, he is not too concerned with what he is getting from Iran (as long, that is, as he can abide by his Jesuitical pledge that Iran won't get a nuclear weapon - on his watch).

As Michael Doran of the Hudson Institute writes, Iran has had three goals during its long negotiation with the West: preserving its nuclear infrastructure, rolling back sanctions and unraveling the international legal regime isolating it. Obama is on the verge of giving it all three because he values a new detente with Iran over everything else.

This is supposed to be transformative, but it's not clear how giving the Iran regime its nuclear program and massive economic relief and international legitimacy on top of it will modify its hegemonic designs and behavior. There is every reason to believe that Iran will continue its aggression, now with a helpful boost from the United States. The Great Satan is not what it used to be.

Friends of the Arts group to disband

It is with an extremely heavy heart that I announce the dissolution of Friends of the Arts. After searching for officers for well over a year, the executive board finally had to conclude that we just aren't going to find any parents/adults that want to take over and carry the fine arts torch at ACJSHS.

Over the years we have been in existence, we have given over $20,000 in scholarships, bought the fine arts display case at ACJSHS, bought shirts for the Greeley Bell Choir, helped purchase Crimson Dancer uniforms, paid for the AC Demy Awards, band medals, helped students go to camps, band/choir trips, forensics trips and many other things too numerous to mention or even remember. There will be not be any FOTA scholarships given out this year.

We will continue to post fine arts news from our Facebook page (which might be re-named at some point) about the Fine Arts activities at ACJSHS and around the Garnett community. We sincerely hope that in the future someone will start a group up again to fully support the Fine Arts at ACJSHS.

Our deep gratitude goes out to those who started the group, all those who have participated in the past and finally, to those who have worked tirelessly to keep it going. Thank you all.

Regretfully Yours,
FOTA Executive Board,
Lori L. Barcus, President

Brownback's budget plan has political fallout

This two-year budget cycle that Gov. Sam Brownback has put the state on at first glance sounds like a pretty good idea. Politically, though, it might just be a nightmare for Republicans and for Democrats ahead of the 2016 elections for every seat in the Legislature.

Brownback's new two-year budget falls at the first year of a two-year House term and at the midpoint of a four-year Senate term. The idea of hammering out a two-year budget and financing it sounds good. Or at least it was when there was a big ending balance that could be drawn down, or plenty of money in the Kansas Department of Transportation to swipe for the state general fund. Not a lot of heavy lifting two years ago on the first two-year budget adventure.

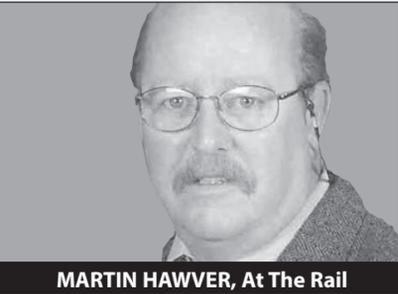

But now, with the surpluses gone and KDOT funds thinning, things are different.

Brownback's original concept was that in the first year of that two-year cycle, a budget would be hammered out, and the second year there would be time for introspection, looking at agencies, delving deeper into their budgets and operations and making touch-ups based on that second year's new knowledge about just how the state works.

Sounds reasonable, probably even a good idea...as long as the budget will balance.

But this year taxes are going to have to be raised and lawmakers have lost that "oh, no, that was last session" toss-away line because of the two-year budget. The state is going to have to raise some taxes on some people this session, and the numbers are going to sound big because, well, it's a two-year budget fix, not just a one-year hole in the bucket to repair.

STATE COMMENTARY

The decisions lawmakers make this session on raising taxes and cutting spending for a two-year budget will remain largely unchanged between now and Election Day for House and Senate members in November of 2016.

That means the ugly decisions necessary will hang around, and those who vote for cuts and for higher taxes and those who don't will have to defend their actions for more than a year. That's a long time to keep explaining votes, isn't it?

And, the good old days of passing a tax increase in the spring of an election year that doesn't take effect until after the polls close are over now. Not only will constituents have read in the paper about some taxes or fees rising or their kids crowded in their classrooms, they'll have had a year living with it before they decide whether they still like their legislators...

Brings everything a little closer, doesn't it?

Now, this two-year cycle will have a political effect on lawmakers who vote for higher taxes to balance the budget...but it is also likely to have a political effect on legislators who don't.

Democrats reminiscing that it was Republicans who approved the massive income tax cuts that now require tax increases to finance the budget may work...or not. The budget will be balanced eventually, of course. That's the law, so it has to happen. And, fixing it, despite the political cost, is probably...well, let's say "workmanlike," not "laudable."

Just complaining from the sidelines—and there are few enough Democrats in each chamber now that it is Republicans who will be responsible for raising taxes and cutting spending—probably isn't the strongest political strategy.

Another problem? At least in the House, any tax bill vote is likely to be just yes or no to approve a conference committee report that can't be amended in debate. Not quite a "shall we pull the child out of the burning barn, or not?" decision, but it's going to sound like it on the campaign trail.

This two-year budget that needs a tax fix? Makes things more interesting, doesn't it?

Errors claim Vikes in second game

"We didn't do very well

offensively," said CHHS head coach Jason Brown. "Derek Manes threw a great game against us."

The Vikes looked to be on their way to a win in the second game until a 4th inning plague of mental and physical errors cost Central Heights 6 runs in the inning and a 10-7 final.

Merrick Brown started off the game on the mound and was relieved by Chase Brown.

Chase was 3-5 with a run and two stolen bases. Anderson County news DAILY
at 8 a.m.
KOFO 1220 AM

Kansas City Power & Light (KCP&L) has filed a request with the Kansas Corporation Commission (Commission) to increase its Kansas retail rates by approximately $67.3 million. If granted, rates will increase by approximately 12.5% around October 1, 2015.

Under KCP&L's proposal, the average residential customer using 1452 kWh in the summer months and 791 kWh in the winter months, will see an increase of approximately $11.67 a month. Residential customers who use electricity to heat their homes may experience a higher average monthly increase during winter months due to increased electricity used to heat their homes.

WHY IS KCP&L ASKING FOR A RATE INCREASE?

There are a number of reasons for KCP&L's current rate increase request, which include:

- Mandated environmental upgrades – Federal and state regulations require KCP&L to make environmental upgrades to its La Cygne power plant. These upgrades will allow the power plant to continue operating and improve air quality in the region. A significant portion of the costs associated with these upgrades is already reflected in rates because the utility was granted the ability to recover costs along the way on this project. Previous incremental rate increases have reduced the need to file a larger rate increase request now.
- Improvements to Wolf Creek power plant – KCP&L is making improvements to its Wolf Creek nuclear power plant. Much of these upgrade costs are associated with Nuclear Regulatory Commission mandates. They will help maintain safety and ensure the plant will continue to provide lower cost, reliable, emissions-free power for customers.
- Infrastructure upgrades – KCP&L has made several major infrastructure upgrades that will modernize its grid and maintain the overall reliability of its system. Some of the improvements include replacing electric meters, upgrading substations and expanding its tree trimming program.

Additional information on KCP&L's rate request is available at KCP.com/KansasRates.

REGULATORY RESPONSIBILITY

The Commission regulates public utilities, including, natural gas, electric and water companies as well as motor carriers, oil and gas pipelines, and oil and gas producers. The Commission's regulatory oversight of public utilities primarily pertains to rates and terms of service. In order to ensure that customers of regulated utilities are provided sufficient and efficient service at just and reasonable rates, utilities may not change their rates without Commission approval.

The Commission will review and consider evidence supplied by KCP&L as well as evidence supplied by other interested parties. The Commission may grant less than the total amount requested by KCP&L in this application and may change the percentage increase charged to any specific customer class.

PUBLIC HEARING

The Commission has scheduled a public hearing to provide KCP&L customers an opportunity to speak to the Commission about KCP&L's proposed rate increase. The public hearing will consist of brief presentations by each of the Parties and an opportunity for customers to make official comments before the Commission.

The hearing will be on:

May 18, 2015, 6:00 p.m.
KU Edwards Campus
BEST Conference Center
12604 Quivira Road
Overland Park, KS 66213

Any person requiring special accommodations at the hearing site under The Americans with Disabilities Act needs to provide notice to the Commission at least 10 days prior to the scheduled hearing by calling 1-800-662-0027.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

The Commission will accept written comments from KCP&L customers through June 16, 2015. Comments should reference Docket No. 15-KCPE-116-RTS and be e-mailed to public.affairs@kcc.ks.gov. You may also mail comments to the Kansas Corporation Commission Office of Public Affairs and Consumer Protection, 1500 SW Arrowhead Road, Topeka, KS 66604 or call 1-800-662-0027.

OTHER INFORMATION

As currently scheduled, the Commission will also conduct evidentiary hearings on KCP&L's request from June 22 through June 26, 2015 at the Commission's offices at 1500 SW Arrowhead Rd., Topeka, KS 66604-4027. A complete copy of KCP&L's application and supporting testimony is available on the Commission's website at: www.kcc.ks.gov, searching Docket Filings for Docket No. 15-KCPE-116-RTS. If you need additional assistance or more information about the proposed rate increase or how to submit public comments to the Commission, contact the Commission's Office of Public Affairs and Consumer Protection at 1-800-662-0027, or at public.affairs@kcc.ks.gov

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 5-5-2015 / Photo Submitted

James Watt and Lynn Lickteig, University of Colorado, Boulder, CO. Lickteig is holding Mr. Watt's winning submission for the first Lynn M. Lickteig Photography Award.

Award named after Greeley native

The Program in Environmental Design (ENVD) at the University of Colorado Boulder has established a $500 annual photography award to honor photographer and former ENVD staff member, Lynn M. Lickteig, for 30 years of service. Lickteig retired from the university in June 2014 at which time the award was announced. The first undergraduate submissions were judged in March 2015, and the inaugural winner was CU senior, James M. Watt, of Marin County, California, who will receive his ENVD bachelor's degree in Landscape Architecture in May 2015. Ms. Lickteig presented the award to Mr. Watt at the annual ENVD scholarship and awards ceremony which was attended by over 150 people on April 17, 2015 at the university.

A native of Greeley, Kansas, Lickteig attended St. John's Elementary School and graduated from Garnett High School in 1977. She credits her Kansas hometown support with preparing her for a professional career in photography. She served on the journalism staff while at Garnett High and was also the yearbook photographer. Lickteig attended Kansas University for two years as a photo journalism major, and then Kaw Area Technical School in Topeka, Kansas where she earned a certificate in photography in 1980.

Lynn says her biggest break came in the form of an educational loan she received from Alfred Rockers at the Bank of Greeley in 1980, which allowed her to move to Leadville, Colorado and attend Colorado Mountain College, where she received an Associate of Arts degree in Creative Photography in 1981. Lickteig went on to receive a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in studio arts photography from CU-Boulder in 1983. She began her career as an instructor with CU in 1984 and taught architectural photography courses for over 20 years. She was also employed as the media center director for the ENVD Program where she created a digital image library of over 100,000 images. The image library covers the disciplines of architecture, city planning and landscape architecture, and is used as an instructional aide by faculty members in their CU college courses.

Lickteig is the daughter of the late Florence and Maurice "Dutch" Lickteig, and grew up the youngest of ten children on the family farm northwest of Greeley. She resides in Boulder, CO, and has been married to Kevin Benjamin for 26 years. They have one son, Mason Benjamin, who graduated from CU-Boulder in 2014.

'The Music Man Jr.' comes to Greeley

Greeley Elementary students gave an amazing performance with their recent rendition of "The Music Man, Jr." This shorter version of the Broadway musical, starred Greeley sixth grader, Orvel Broce, as Harold Hill, the deceiving traveling salesman who posed as a band director in River City, Iowa. Broce is pictured above as he speaks to the townspeople and Pic-a-little ladies. The musical was directed by Mr. Jeff Russell.

Below, appearing to ride the train, these passengers opened the Music Man, Jr show at Greeley with "Rock Island Express." The back drop and props were designed by students. Additional songs throughout the show were "Iowa Stubborn", "76 Trombones", "Pick-a-Little-Talk-a-Little, and "Wells Fargo." Remi Kennard, Lane Richards, Alison Brown, Bryce McCurdy, Lora Hays, Jake Lee and Orvel Broce are pictured.

GPD officer graduates law enforcement center

YODER — Robert Donovan, a patrol officer for the Garnett Police Department, was one of 57 new law enforcement officers congratulated by Kansas Supreme Court Chief Justice Lawton Nuss during their graduation from the Kansas Law Enforcement Training Center (KLETC) on April 10.

The graduates, who began their training Jan. 5, represented 43 municipal, county and state law enforcement agencies from across Kansas.

The new officers were members of the 233rd basic training class at the center. Located one mile west and one mile south of Yoder, near Hutchinson, the center is a division of University of Kansas Continuing Education.

Graduates receive certificates of course completion from KLETC and Kansas law enforcement certification from the Kansas Commission on Peace Officers' Standards and Training, the state's law enforcement licensing authority. The training course fulfills the state requirement for law enforcement training. Classroom lectures and hands-on applications help train officers to solve the increasingly complex problems they face in the line of duty.

Established by the Kansas Legislature in 1968, the center trains the majority of municipal, county and state law enforcement officers in Kansas and oversees the training of the remaining officers at seven authorized and certified academy programs operated by local law enforcement agencies and the Kansas Highway Patrol.

About 300 officers enroll annually in the 14-week basic training program. The center offered continuing education and specialized training to as many as 5,600 Kansas officers each year. Funding for the training center is generated from court docket fees from municipal and state courts. No funds from the state's general revenue are used to operate the center.

Networking: The "who you know" of business

Maybe you're brand new in business; maybe you're a veteran who's looking for a way to boost your sales. No matter your level of experience you either know or will soon find out how valuable networking is to generating sales and business revenues.

It's a "business hip" term that deserves some dissecting, so let's take "networking" apart and see how it works.

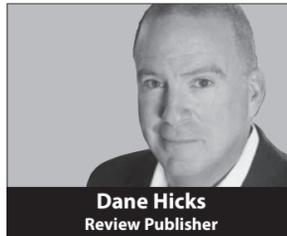

First, why network? Very simple. We network to make positive personal impressions on prospective customers or on others who might refer us to prospective customers. It's backslapping, flesh-pressing, good-ole-boy socializing in true capitalist tradition; because like it or not, "face-to-face" helps you sell stuff.

Unfortunately some business people eschew networking because they don't see themselves as "social" people. True, for some people it's hard to come out of your shell. But if you're going to be in business, you'd better find a way. If you don't network in some form or fashion, you're cutting yourself off from what is probably the most direct and primary source of sales.

Here are a couple of tips to make networking more comfortable and effective.

- 1) Target yourself to networks that can impact your business. If you have a custom olive oil shop, you probably wouldn't want to network with the local dirt track racing group in town. Pick a bridge club or instructors of cooking classes or other local shops frequented by women customers.
- 2) Don't forget to chat up the other nearby businesses in your community or area. You should get to know these folks and they should get to know you so you can both feel comfortable cross-promoting each other. Also remember local civic clubs, library groups, etc., who are always looking for information programs.
- 3) Always be ready. Carry business cards with you — enough to give away two each time you have the opportunity; one for the contact and one he/she can pass along to anyone else who might use your service. Have your "elevator speech" memorized or at least outlined in your mind — the long and the short of who you are, what you do and what makes you special, which you can relay in a couple of sentences.

4) The secret to being comfortable making chit chat is always to ask questions. Show some interest in the person you're talking with and ask them about their business, line of work, hobby, interests, etc. People love to talk about themselves, and it gives them the chance to segue into asking about you. If they don't ask (some people are too interested in talking about themselves), look for an opportunity to insert your info into the conversation.

5) Don't forget to network online as well. Find your opportunities in forums or blogs, Twitter and other places your customers hang out or ask questions you can help with.

6) Follow up immediately on your contacts. If you swap business cards with a good prospect shoot him/her an email the next day with an article or tip pertaining to their business or interest (Google their business or service to find one) and to confirm your line of communication.

Networking skills are vital to marketing yourself and generating sales. With just a little

2005: City caves on railroad crossings

May 3, 2005

Garnett city commissioners begrudgingly approved the closing of Pine, Cedar and Spruce streets at their crossing with the Union Pacific Railroad last week, after concluding the unbending railroad company would leave the East Kansas Agri-Energy ethanol plant without rail service if the city refused the closings. Last year, after a handful of city residents protested, city commissioners turned down a UPAC and Kansas Department of Transportation request to close five lesser trafficked crossings in the city even though fire and police officials said the closings would not inhibit response times by local emergency vehicles.

Anderson County commissioners voted to eliminate the part-time position of county fire training officer in order to save money. The net savings that will result from elimination of the position will be $1,600. The county will save another $30,000 by not hiring a deputy director of emergency preparedness.

The USD 365 school board ratified a contract with district teachers Thursday night. The new contract includes a minor change in the teacher salary schedule that will add another step to the bottom of the schedule. The change will allow teachers who have topped out in years on the job to receive a pay increase. Teacher salaries will increase 1.56 percent, or $38,440 next year.

May 6, 1985

In negotiations with the USD 365 school board Tuesday, the North Anderson County Teachers Association proposed a salary base of $16,200 with $400 increments which would bring the total money to fund salaries to $1.6 million. The teacher's statistics showed USD 365 teachers' salaries are below most of the schools in the Frontier League.

A record number of exhibitors have registered for the Square Fair. One hundred twenty-four spaces were reserved for 112 artisans by the registration deadline. Eighteen exhibitors are from the Anderson County area.

Garnett was definitely promised a new depot, brick structure and modern in every way, at a meeting held this afternoon, when the Santa Fe Boosters visited with the business men of the community. The officials of the company supported the project heartily. "I would suggest that you burn the old depot, and if you don't, I will," is the way Chas. S. Gleed, a director of the Santa Fe, put the matter to the Garnett Boosters in his brief address at the opera house. The remark clearly meant that, as a director for the railroad, he was for a new depot. The building would be built of brick, nicely finished, large enough, and a depot of which all Garnett and surrounding country will be proud.

This week's column is another "Can You Identify It" column.

Two weeks ago during my excavation project of a house that was built of stone in 1861, I found this iron artifact. It measures 11 1/2 inches long and only 2 inches wide at the top.

As of today, I've had only one person who actually saw it, identify it as a Divot. A divot is a tool often used in making holes for planting. If anyone else knows or think they know what this artifact might be, please give me a ring.

Note: Remember last week's odd looking tool? Well I had two gentlemen, Mr. Butch Romig and Mr. Ron Zimmerman, both identified it as a hand held ice pick, used in splitting or chipping the old blocks of ice, often delivered to the homes and businesses for their ice boxes and coolers.

Thank you, Butch and Ron.

We are watched over by the good shepherd

In John 10:11 Jesus identifies himself as the good shepherd. He then goes on to compare the care the good shepherd provides the flock versus the care provided by the hired hand. Jesus states the good shepherd is willing to lay down his life for the sheep. The hired hand has no interest in the sheep and abandons them when he sees the wolf coming.

Jesus here presents his ministry as the shepherd of Israel. The hired hand is not the shepherd who owns the sheep and is only controlled by his own fears and self-interest. The New Testament reveals Jesus as the Good Shepherd who gave his life for the sheep.

In verse 14 Jesus again identifies himself as the good shepherd. The good shepherd provides fresh water to drink and green grass for the sheep to graze on. Under the watchful eyes of the good shepherd the sheep graze at ease knowing they are well cared for. Under the care of the hired hand the wolf attacks the flock and scatters them and thieves plunder the flock. In verse 14 Jesus says, "I know my sheep and my sheep know me - just as the Father knows me and I know the Father - and I lay down my life for the sheep." Here Jesus links his own divine nature with one of the most ordinary occupations in Israel. For those who know Jesus as their Savior he is the Good Shepherd. He is never off duty. Not only does he provide for their own daily care but he provides for our eternal care as well.

When John the Baptist declared Jesus to be, "The Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world" he was exactly right. (John 1:29) Jesus laid his life down willingly for the sins of the world. If we are willing to accept this sacrifice, Christ's death secured your and my salvation. This is confirmed in Romans 5:8 when we read from the Apostle Paul, "But God showed his love for us in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us." In Christ's death, God reconciled us to himself. The cross had this affect because in his suffering Christ assumed our identity and endured the judgment due us.

This is the teaching of the New Testament that God chose for salvation a great number of a fallen race and sent Christ into the world to save them.
